Two Ways of Cleansing Feather,

Two Ways of Cleansing Feathers.

Wash ostrich feathers in tepid suds of soft water and castile or Windsor soap by taking the feathers by the stems and stripping through the fingers. Rinse in clean warm water and dry by waving gently over a hot fire.

Lay the feathers on a plate and scrub gently with a tooth-brush dipped in warm soap suds. Then shake out and dry by a good fire. At first the feather will have a most discouraging appearance, and you will be apt to think it is spoiled. But after it is perfectly dry curl it carefully with a penknife and it. curl it carefully with a penknife and it will recover all its plumy softness.

To Encourage the Love of Flowers. A pretty idea is carried out in Loudon, says the Fashion Bazar, which aims to bring about a love of plants and flowers among the poorer classes. A fund is raised out of which prizes are and is raised out of which prizes are paid for the best display of window gardening or of potted plants, and the scheme has become so popular that thousands of cottage homes are now beautified by floral effects, and it is no uncommon thing to see a window set out with plants growing in old teapots, cans or cigar boxes marked as a prize winner. prize winner.

Bridge Stockings

The daintiest stockings to be worn by a bride are of fine white silk with a medallion of Valenciennes lace set in the instep, the design being one of orange blossoms. They are as frail as the proverbial colveel, however. When one is going to save one's wedding gown and wedding fan, it is just as well to have the beautiful stockings to go with them, so that the next generation may see just what mamma wore on her wedding day.

How to Grow Thin.

How to Grow Thin.

A celebrated English physician has discovered a way to make stout people thin, and this is done by not drinking liquids, with the exception of one small cup of coffee a day. If his patient is very clamorous he allows her, besides, a cup of water as boiling hot as she can drink it. The English medico declares that there can be no elegant waists where so much liquid is swallowed, and that neonle should drink by teaspoonthat people should drink by teaspoonfuls instead of gallons.

At a "yellow" tea in New York the hostess poured out tea at a table draped in yellow silk, embroidered in white sphinx heads, and lit by yellow candles with yellow shades, ornamented with yellow chrysanthemums.

FOR THE PAIR SEX.

An old lace-maker who has woven many a gossamer web for that connois-seur of laces. Mme. Modjeska, and has taught the fair actress to fashion some of the daintiest patterns her deti fingers delight in doing, gives this simple recipe for lace cleaning. Spread the lace out carefully on wrapping paper, then sprinkle it carefully with calcined magnesia; place another paper over it and put it away between the leaves of a book for two or three days. All it needs is a skillful slake to scatter the white is a skillful shake to scatter the white powder and then it is ready for wear, with slender threads intact and as fresh as when new.

When you see a woman lift her wellgloved hand to her face and minutely inspect the beauty of the palm you may be sure that is but a ruse to catch a glimpse of her personal charms. # FARM NOTES.

Clover hay is a perfect food for all farm animals except the horses. Timothy is much better for them, for the reason that it is slower to digest, is not so account and relaximent. othy is much better for them, for the reason that it is slower to digest, is not so succulent and relaxing, and hence a horse fed with it will not sweat nor seour as when fed on clover and then put to work at the plow or driven rapidly on the road. A horse cannot do good work and keep in prime condition if he is soft, and clover has a tendency to make him so. Good timothy hay and oats, are their natural and proper food, yet it is true that clover has a grenter leeding value than any other kind of hay, and, knowing this, a correspondent has asked us why it would not pay to sell the timothy, for which a higher price can always be obtained, and feed the clover. From our explanation in the foregoing it will be seen that such a policy will answer if you have no horses to feed, but, if you have, save enough timothy for them.

Buckwheat is a crop that more attential

Buckwheat is a crop that more attention might profitably be given to. In many regions where it was once culti-vated to considerable extent a field of it has now become quite a rarity, but there are some decided advantages in its cultivation, among which is the fact that it will make a paying yield on rather poor land. It is also a good crop rather poor land. It is also a good crop for green measuring, and can be used as a starter for improving exhausted lands where it would be difficult to procure a catch of clover. One or two crops turn-ed under would make a good foundation for a stronger crop, such as rye or clover. As it may be sown late, July being the proper month in most regions, it may often be used as a second crop it may often be used as a second crop, or to fill the gap where something clse has failed. Seed should be sown at the rate of about three pecks an area, and a fair crop is in the neighborhood of forty bushels. Besides being used for flonr, buckwheat makes one of the very hest foods for fowls. It is a good cleaning crop, and is nover attacked by insects.

Wherever the Herefords are known they are becoming more popular as a beef breed. Their early maturity is a very strong point in their favor, and they make a valuable cross upon native cattle. They have also considerable ability as "rustlers." standing occasional shortness of pasture extraordinarily well, and this feature has made the breed a favorite on the reach the breed a favorite on the range, where such accidents will sometimes happen. The Herefords are eminently where such accurate an eminently a special purpose breed, and have never been vaunted for their performance in the dairy, but if one wishes to grade up their stock strictly for beef production they could hardly do better than to introduce Hereford blood.

There are few products of the farm which are absolutely waste products. They can go the compost heap and be turned into fertilizer, if nething else. The trouble is that some things are turned into fertilizer too soon, before they have served their whole purpose in other ways. Market gardeners, for in other ways. Market gardeners, for instance, seldom make any use of their vegetable refuse in the way of feeding, when almost all of it might be turned to some profit in that way. A large celery grower has recently discovered that his refuse stalks and leaves are early eaten by his sheep, and that they thrive exceedingly well upon them. It is time enough to use these things as a fortilizer, after the feeding value has fertilizer, after the feeding value has been extracted.

If you have more young pigs than the clover pasture will well carry try get-ting some of them nicely fat and markthem for roasters when they weigh twelve or fifteen pounds. The stock market to-day was still less animated, but there was a gratifying change in the temper of the dealings from weakness to strength, the demand from the shorts causing the bleching of prices in the general list upon a materially higher plane, which event, on the continued manipulation of the grangers for lower prices, was able to restrain. The speculation in fact, while still kept of an almost wholly professional character, showed merorant more strength, which comes from the fact that stocks are held in strong hands. The market to-day was active in spots, and the early bear manipulation of the grangers, the increased interest in the litchmond & West he increased interest in the litchmond & West and the carly bear manipulation of the grangers, the increased interest in the litchmond & West and the configuration which resulted in a surary advance in the stocks of the company, and a spurt among the coal dealers in the afternoon were then principal features of the day. The strong undertone, however, was marked at all times, even when the prices of the grangers were declining. Union Facilies was also a strong feature, and the losses of thograngers were made up in the afternoon with something to spire. The market finally closed with a spuri of activity under renewed covering and very strong at the highest prices of the day.
